"The Hagan."

Did you ever stop to ask yourself or your knowing friend the meaning of "The" in the place named The Hagan?
If you are looking for something that will teach the above mentioned knowledge of the fact, just ask him the meaning of the three letters quoted.
Tell him that the "The" as it occurs in the name does not imply the English word "the" or "travelling," either of which in the Dutch language means "a country's help" or "the country's power or glory."

Originally the location now occupied by the city of The Hagan was the home ground of the counts of Holland.
About the year 1250 a palace was built in the grove. Presently it will go flying up and the palace will be called "The Count's Home," and finally, and lastly a large city which in the Dutch language has its official translation, but which in modern English has been called
"The Hagan."

Our Bones Build Up to Arches.

The principle of the arch may be said to pervade the construction of the human skeleton. The late Professor Owen points this out very clearly, telling us that in man the skeleton is arranged in a series of segments, which follow and articulate with each other in the direction of the axis of the body from the head downward.

fact that comparative lightness of the skeleton. From the dense material of the skull to the graceful arch of the spine, which supports the weight of the body, the system of

X-Ray Finds a bone

Last Saturday Will Hamilton the negro who was shot nine years ago by Josie Bent, and who has since then been paralyzed from his hips down, was examined by Dr. McKay with the X-Ray instrument to locate the pistol ball, which could never be found. The X-Ray revealed a foreign substance near the negro's knee which was at first thought to be the ball, but upon further investigation proved to be a small piece of the man's spinal column, which had been broken off by the pistol shot, and had gradually worked its way down his leg. At times it would cause the limb to swell, and was giving the man considerable trouble. The bone was removed by Dr. McKay, but the ball could not be located Unconscious from Coup.

During a sudden and terrible attack of drowsy little girl was unconscious from strangulation, says A. L.
Spafford, post master Chester, Mich.
and a dose of One Minute Cough Cure was administered and repeated often it reduced the swelling, and inflammation, cut the cancer and shortly the child was resting easy and speedily recovered. It cures Coughs, Colds, La Grippe and all throat and lung troubles. O. A. Minute Cough Cure lingers in the throat and chest, and enables the lungs to contribute pure

F. M. CAMPBELL For Clerk.

Mr. F. M. Campbell authorizes us this week to announce him a candidate for the office of Circuit Court Clerk of Washington county subject to the action of the Democratic party at the primary election February 21. Mr. Campbell is perhaps known to us many people as any other one man in Washington county and few indeed that can be found but what speak well of him. His popularity is general and extends to all classes. He has been before the voters of the county on several occasions and their votes have always brought him out victorious. The fact that he has always faithfully and honorably performed the duties of the office to which he was elected is the recompense he gave the people for their trust in him. He is a man of whom it can truthfully be said that none who ever asked of him a reasonable favor was ever turned away disappointed. He is ever loyal to his party and his friends and to those who differ with him politically he is always most friendly and considerate. Mr. Campbell has only recently yielded to the urgent demands of his friends that he become a candidate for re-election and it may not be possible for him, in the short time before the date of primary to visit all parts of the county but he has had many assurances that his interests will be looked after and that his friends will rally to his support on the day of the primary.

F. M. CAMPBELL

Bloodied Bar-room fight

The fight for and against the introduction of the saloon into Blount is close and exciting.
The opposition has been strong enough to cut down to twenty-five the number of names to the petition, and should they be able to have six more withdraw their names, the coming election would be off, and a new petition necessary to procure another.
There is no class line to be drawn between those favoring and those opposing the licensing of saloons in Blount, for on both sides are found some of Blount's most prominent and worthy citizens. One of those evidently against the saloon is an interview with a representative of the Record and that if only one saloon would open up be kept up respectively. The position could not be held by but that the people of Blount several of them.

Card from Brother Barnes Lebanon, Ky., Jan. 16, 1903.
Editor News-Leader: Will you kindly convey to the limited number that attended the services at the Court House last week my grateful sense of their generous persistence in braving the horrible weather to hear what I had to say; and their kindness in contributing enough to preserve my little travelling reserve intact. I shall not soon forget Springfield and that pleasant meeting and the "faithful few" who stuck to me through thick and thin. God bless them, ever. I felt the haloed hovering influence of the Grandeur whose name I bear; his noble wife, my grandmother—both of whom repose in your cemetery, and of my dear old father who wrought at his humble trade in Springfield before he became a minister of the Gospel. I am glad that they can look down from ethereal heights and see the last of their line preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom in the old town which they called "home" in days gone by. I believe in the future of the intercommunicated blessings.

A KING'S POEM.

Antiquary Verse by James I. in a Book Owned in Boston.

An interesting volume in the Boston Public Library is Montaigne's "Essays," printed early in the seventeenth century, which was owned by James Montaigne, the king who was so largely responsible for the publication of the accepted version of the Holy Bible.
The book is the first English translation of the great French author and was made by John Florio, a friend of many of the famous Elizabethan writers, including Shakespeare himself, who drew several suggestions from his pages for well known passages in his plays.

His binding, but the ancient fly leaf is preserved on which is written the following poem. In King James' autograph: Here lyeth I (askt to be the autograph Of my faith full, a humane devotee O trust the Almighty, by the Almighty's O put on me thy robe as a garment Two point one more me in thy best believe
And in my soul thy secret law engrave The quer words and quaint spelling are characteristic of early Scotch poetry, which King James as a Scotchman himself, took great delight in writing, and perhaps the average reader will have no more difficulty in deciphering the royal message than in making out a page in a modern Scotch dialect novel.

Liquid Oxygen.

Liquid oxygen when first formed is milky in appearance owing to the presence of some impurity which may be removed by passing it through ordinary filter paper. When pure, it is of a pale blue color, which, however, is not due, as some have thought, to the presence of liquid ozone, which is of a dark blue color. Liquid oxygen is a non-conductor of electricity, but is strongly magnetic. It may be lifted from a cup by presenting the pole of a strong electro magnet. It seems to have very slight chemical activity, since it will extinguish a light match and has no action on a piece of phosphorus dropped into it. It is well known that the A and B lines of the solar spectrum are due to oxygen, and from experiments on the top of Mont Blanc it is thought they are largely if not due to the oxygen in the air.
Where Professor Dewar has made experiments on the liquefaction of oxygen is interesting up to the very end—
